synopsis:

Since being separated from God's presence in the garden, man has wondered what God looks like. Like generations before us, we too wrestle with understanding God's nature, often settling for the limited views of man. Some have thought of him in terms of a moral police officer, only interested in catching and punishing us for doing wrong. Others have compared God to an absent landlord unconcerned with our daily lives and struggles. But these views do not satisfy and so we continue to wonder . . .

However, Scripture does give us a picture of God. We are told that Jesus Christ is the exact representation of His nature. Thus, if we want to know what God looks like, we need look no further than Jesus, the visible image of the invisible God.

discussion questions:

- What are some views about what God is like?
- What do we know about God from reading about Jesus?
- Do you feel distant to or intimate with God? What do you think He desires?
